To keep a horse in a wark stable, says an agricultural exchange, is cruel to the animal and dangerous to its owner. When led out the sudden change from darkness to daylight is very trying to the horse's eyes. The retina becomes deadened and more or less useless, and after a time the sight is seriously impaired. The horse starts and shies at objects it sees imperfectly, and many a dangerous accident has been caused by this rather than any vicious habit of the animal.

A New York doctor says: "I know of several girls who have died from sipping ices through a straw. This is the reason: In sucking the ices up the cold substance strikes the palate of the mouth and cools the head. Then when the young women walk in the sun and exert themselves the cold reacts, giving them a severe headache, which is later followed by a fever, and in some cases death has resulted."

Beware of ice cream and soft drinks, fruits and ices. More than twice as many persons died last year from inability to curb their appetite for these summer luxuries than were carried to their grave from dread consumption and fever (soldiers included).

"Frequently there are inquiries made of the patent office in regard to a shoetie, or self-fastening shoe string," remarked a patent office examiner, "and anything in that line, if at all practical, would produce more money than the mines of the Klondike. Shoe manuracturers have been on the lookout for such an invention for years, and it would be interesting to see how they would bid against each other for the invention should it develop. The shoe manufacturing concerns are represented by a number of clever and competent attorneys, and they keep a sharp lookout for anything in their line that turns up. There have been a number of inventions in the matter of self-tieing shoe strings, and patents have been issued, but they are not practical or not susceptible of improve-

There are grades and qualities of the horse hair, but the best is not very costly. A hank of the best white hair can be bought for 20 cents; it might cost 30 cents more to have it put into the bow. To rehalr a bass viol bow costs more, the bulk of hair required being greater.

Hold a Copyright on the Bible. In the high court of chancery of England the universities of Oxford and Cambridge recently obtained an injunction forbidding Rev. Francis Marshall and other defendants from reprinting extracts from the revised edition of the New Testament, of which the universities own the copyright. The ffect of this decision is to prevent English clergymen from printing even sermons which contain extracts from the New Testament in the revised edition. Of the 2,500 changes in the revised edition It is said that all but 20 were familiar to Biblical students before the revised edition was published.

Those very gullible persons who are fleeced by "divine healers" deserve little sympathy, says a Philadelphia exchange; but the number who are fleeced is somewhat startling. The very assumption of "Divinity" which will manifest itself only for each should warn the intelligent public against those who pretend to possess it.

The court of appeals of Kentucky has held that a person who is learning to ride a bicycle upon a street, and while doing so was injured by a trolley car, was not guilty of contributory negligence so as to preclude recovery of damages.

Many years ago the Montana club in Helena entertained Mark Twain after a lecture. He met many old friends there and one old enemy. The latter had come all the way from Virginia City, Nev., on purpose to settle an old score. When the glasses were filled and Mark's health proposed, this man interrupted the proceedings by saying "Hold on a minute. Before we go further I want to say to you, Sam Clemens, that you did me a dirty trick over

There was a deathly silence for a moment, when Mark said in his deliborate drawl: "Let's see. That-wasbefore-I-reformed, wasn't-it?"

Senator Sanders suggested that has much as the other fellow had never reformed Clemens and all the others present forgive him and drink together, which all did.

"The ways of the female shopper are beyond the ordinary salesman's in business in the shopping section of the city, "A woman came in here the other day and asked the prices of all kinds and styles of spectacles and eyeglasses known to those in the trade. Finally, after a half hour's quizzing, she rustled out with the remark: "Thank you, I expect to get a pair of glasses for a birthday present, and I just wanted to know about the prices of them." Human beings are not the only creatures that have discovered the appetizing, though indigestable, qualities of crabs, and some of these animals have been compelled to resort to various defensive measures. Disguise is one of these and is practiced with great effect by spider crabs. These deliberately bite up seaweeds and plant them on their backs, very soon establishing a growth which harmonizes perfectly with the surroundings and deceives many an enemy. Should the weeds grow too vigorously. the crab industriously prunes them with his claws and every now and then scrapes the whole lot off and starts a manner, upplug off litt 🍂 🖂 of Pving sponge and sticking them on his back, where they grow vigorously. The same end is served as in the other case. It is very amusing to keep crabs of one or other of these kinds in an aqua rium and deprive them of the usual means of concealment,

They get very nervous and agitated and try to cover themselves with bits of paper or anything else that may be provided. One such captive is said to have had a little greatcoat made for

One night when the Earl of Stauhope was walking alone in the Kentish lanes a man jumped out of the hedge, leveled i pistol and demanded his purse.

wealth, a man widely respected. He and the earl talked of many things and found each other mutually entertaining. Next day Lord Stauhope received a letter, out of which dropped a f100 note. "It was your lord-hip's kind loan of this sum," said the note, "that started me in life and enabled me to have the honor of sitting next to your lordship at dinner." A strange story; but the Stanhopes are a strange race, and things happen to them that never did or could occur to other people.

Which of Your Eyes Cries? It seems a positively absurd question to ask, "Which of your eyes cries?" In an everyday, common or garden cry it is well known that salt tears make their appearance and rush away down the face seemingly as fast from one as from the other, whichever the "other" may be, but if careful note is and often opens the tear valve before happy event.
