A Survey of Present-Day Cavy Problems a period of 12 months, dating from Nov. 1st, 1947. The proposition was carried unanimously. The second case was between Mr. King, of Essex, and Mr. Stanley, of Ikeston. Mr. King exhibited a black buck at Nottingham on Sept. 20th, and in return received a blue of poor quality owned by Mr. Stanley. Mr. King's buck needed only one further win for championship. Correspondence from Mr. King and Mr. Stanley was read by Mr. Jude, as also were letters from Mr. T. Fitzwater, secretary of the Nottingham show, and witness. In one of his letters Mr. Stanley stated, "When unpacking I found the mouse half way in, and half way out of the cage. It was paralysed from waist down, so I did what was best, kept it for a couple of days, and then gave it to the cat." Mr. Jude demonstrated with a Maxey cage to show that it would seem impossible for a steward te close the lids with a mouse trapped as suggested. He also said he had questioned the Nottingham stewards individually and was not satisfied that they had packed Mr. Stanley's mice. Mr. Fitzwater was of the opinion that Mr. Stanley had packed his own stock. Mr. Jude asked Mr. Fitzwater what time elapsed between the Nottingham show, and the reporting of the matter by Mr. Stanley. Mr. Fitzwater replied that there was an interval of two weeks, during which tine, reports of the mouse being missing, were made in Fur and Farther by Mr. Ward, and by advertisement from Mr. King. On conclusion of the evidence, Mr. Jude summed up as follows: "You will gather that in this case there is no question of identity or ownership. It is admitted by Mr. Stanley that he received a black mouse belonging to Mr. King. He says that the mouse was trapped, and so badly damaged that he gave it to his cat. The question of packing has to be considered, and whether it is possible to close the lids of a cage, with a mouse before first calling on a witness to note the damage. If the answers to these questions are not satisfactory the Executive is to be taken. Mr. Wormald proposed, and Mr. Turton seconded

SINCE the National Championship in London I have been turning a few matters over in my mind and I would like to offer a few reflections arising out of the event. First let us consider the Beige. In the past I have bred this lovely variety which, I am sure, would be kept in greater numbers, if only fanciers could reach some common ground regarding shade of colour. When the Beige came on the table the breeder's problem was fairly obvious; "I wonder what shade the judge likes." This is a hopeless position, exasperating for the breeder and decidedly bad for the variety.

Flakiness of colour, due to lack of density in the undercoat, tends to crop up. I would not say that this is a fault peculiar to Beige but rather that it is more easily spotted in this variety Dark pigs seem to escape flakiness but, unfortunately, a dark colour has an associated hardness which robs it of its beauty.

In Beige we should strive for something associated hardness which robs it of its beauty.

In Beige we should strive for something soft and bright, not hard, nor washed out, and certainly not flaky. I feel sure that the colour problem would be solved in great measure and that we could burn our colour charts if the following were included in the standard, "no darker than necessary to avoid flakiness on the flanks." This would take care of undercolour, cut out on the show bench, hard, dark colour and give us a soft medium shade. But most important of all it would pin down judges to something definite and produce some order out of present chaos.

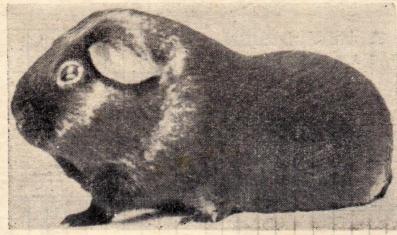

bench, hard, dark colour and give us a soft medium shade. But most important of all it would pin down judges to something definite and produce some order out of present chaos.

I am not breeding Beige at present so I have no axe to grind. I have offered these observations in an effort to try to help a variety ' like. How does this suggestion appeal to breeders? Perhaps they would care to run over their pigs, bearing in mind the above and let us have their views.

Where are the Lilacs? I will have something to say about them in the notes on colour inheritance, which I am writing. Anyone interested can produce them afresh easily when given the formula. Regarding these promised colour notes, I have been taken to task more than once about these and I apologise for the delay. Writing on the subject is easy enough but it is not so easy when I have to translate a very technical subject into simple English and bring the subject within reach of the average fancier.

Excluding grooming, why does one stroke a cavy? Is it done for pleasure or because one feels it is the correct thing to do or is it just one of those mechanical sort of things like stroking the domestic cat? By running a hand over a pig one can elicit much information if one has a sense of touch. Some people have this naturally; others have to work had to cultivate it. It should form part of the essential equipment of the fancier. In medicine we are all trained to develop it. In racing pigeons one learns more by handling than by seeing, certainly in the matter of fitness and body make and shape. In cavies I think that some fanciers rely too much on what can be seen and miss what can be felt.

By running a hand over a pig one should be able to determine width and depth of shoulder, texture of coat and body condition, all in one hand movement. When judging, unnecessary handling is reduced to that extent, especially in a big class. This is very useful when giving pigs the "once over." Regarding the handling of cavies. I wonder if fanciers realise how much weigh buried beneath it. Cauliflower leaves have been a good standby this last few weeks, and now they are getting scarce I shall use carrots and swedes. Fresh water is given daily, and I mix up the bran rations with stewed celery trimmings and any oddments I can scrounge from the family left-overs.

"At four weeks old I take the youngsters away and separate the sexes, then run them on till the weights required for research are reached. Young sows kept for future breeding are placed in the breeding pen when about five months old, and young boars are used when turned four months old. This is earlier than most cavy men use their stock for breeding, but as my pigs generally weigh about two pounds when fully grown I don't see that this early mating is in any way detrimental."

There we have a method which the ordinary cavy fancier would hesitate to adopt if he were building up a stud for exhibition purposes, but it is interesting to hear different ways of keeping cavies.

CAVIES IN THE SOUTH

THE following fanciers have joined the Southern Cavy Club: Mrs. Camp. 13. Nightingale Road Wood Green, N.22: Mrs. Glover, Morants Court, Farm Cottage, Dunton Green, Kent; Mrs. Puddicombe, Beech Koune, Avenue Road, Witham Essex; Mr. Halford, 195, Ilford Lane, Ilford, Essex, and Mr. Hewitt, 17. Hatfield Road, Watford, Herts, I congratulate all members on their splendid entry at the National championship show, Both club classes were well supported and members also supported the open classes well: in fact never before have I seen so many entries from the south at a premier show. Among the principal winning exhibitors were Mrs. Tipton and Messrs. Lawrence, Treveal, and P. Wright Those members receiving other awards wer. Miss Bartolomew, Miss Chaffey and Miss McNile, Messrs, Brazil, Brown, Carr, Cooper Daynes, Hornby Tiber, and Trigger, and Master Field. I thank all cavy exhibitors at the National ch. show, especially the Northern fanciers for the splendid entry of 1,00.

Special prizes offered at shows have been won as follows—Strood; Best smooth and best rough Master Field. Portsmouth: Best Self, Mrs. Maunsell and best any variety (bar Self) Mr. Tiber; Cranleigh best cavy Master Armes, and beat reserve Mr. Summerson. The club's juvenile section is growing fast, and three successful members in this section are Miss Chaffey and Masters Armes and Field. At the Nation. I ch show the winners of of club specials were Best white and cream. Mr. Treveal; best black myself best A.O.C. Self Mrs. Tiphor; best Dutch Mr. Carr, best Himalayan Mr. Cooper. best Tortoise and white Mr. Sayers.

The club urgently requires a venue for the adult stock show, which will have to be held in January or February. Will any society willing to stage the show please let me know. I shall be grateful if members will help me to fix the A.S.S by making inquiries at their local societies.

Further offers of help towards the guarantee fund for the adult stock show have been received. Mr. Summerson has sent 10/- as a donation, and the following members have offered a guarantee against loss at this event: Mrs. Maunsell 10/- Mr. Brown £1, and Mr. Hollings 10/-. Members' badges can now be obtained from me price 2/- each. Prefixes can be registered with the club at a charge of 2/6.

Special prizes have been offered at Harrow on Feb. 14th, 1948. Subscriptions paid now will be carried over for 1948. The subscriptions are 5/- single, per year: partnership 8/-; juvenile 2/6.—Miss Radeglia, hon. sec. and treas. 7, Dorking Road, Epsom, Surrey.

NORTHERN NO-TAIL NOTES

CHESTER-LE-STREET AND BIRTLEY have changed their headquarters to the High Crown Hotel, Chester-le-Street, where all future table shows will be held on the third Saturday of each month.

Mr. Don Heatherington, Ferryhill, and his daughter, Katherine, are keen cavy fanciers and I see them at most northern shows. Miss Katherine takes a very great interest in her cavies and in her we have a coming fancier. At Prosterley show on Nov. 29th. the Durham and Northumberland Cavy Club members held a meeting. The secretary, Mr. W. Dinning, will be sending out nomination papers for 1948 officials. Fanciers should send in their nominations with the usual written consent as early as possible.

The secretary was given full consent to go ahead to try to fix up the young and adult stock shows for next year. Sedgefield was mentioned as a venue for one of the shows, as a good offer was received from Mr. A. Watt.

It was also suggested that the club hold six table shows yearly in conjunction with six different societies' table shows. This motion was left over for further discussion at a future meeting.

Many fanciers are having their stock delivered at shows too late for judging. I had the same experience a while ago, and as a test sent a claim to the railway company guarantees to carry and deliver the stock to the address given on the label, but not at any stated time, or hour,—Wm. F. Surtees, Carley Hill Gardens, Southwick, Sunderland, Co. Durham.

KEEPING CAVIES FOR RESEARCH

By C. V. B. TAYLOR, 16, Buile Hill Drive, 2016 Sallord 5, Manchester.

A YORKSHIRE fancier sends me the following particulars of his method of cavy cheigh gwooden buildings. They are run in large pens with as many as 20 sows and three or four boars running together continuously, year in and year out, so the sows are allowed to kindle without being separated. By this method I get the quickest turn-over possible as the sows are, in the majority of cases mated again immediately after kindling."

My correspondent assures me that this method of cavy breeding has been successful over a period of many vears, Half a dozen intension adults or youngsters.

Of his methods of feeding my correspondents assures. Half a dozen into the mouse at Hatfield show, five days predicting the without being separated. By this methods of cavy breeding has been successful and there is no noticeable weakness either in adults or youngsters.
