WILD MICE AND RATS

By MARTIN HARTMAN, New City, N. Y.

OF the many species of Wild Rats and Mice few are more interesting than the white footed Mouse (Peromyscus Leucopus) also known as the Deer Mouse. These Mice are brownish fawn color above, darkest on the back and brightest on the sides and belly. Other under parts and feet are white. The fur being blumbeous at its base. They are found in their wild state throughout the eastern United States, south of the evergreen forests and north of the gulf states.

This little Mouse is probably the most beautiful of all our Wild Mice, especially in the winter time when it is very showy. Its fur then being thick and long, a rich golden fawn color on top and snow white beneath. The line of separation being clear cut and straight as possible from the tip of the nose to the end of the tail. Its eyes are large, gold and shiny black and very conspicuous.

These Mice like our flying squirrels are among the most unsuspecting and gentle of living things. They are armed with long sharp teeth, but seldom use them when captured. Other species that will be interesting for the fancier to take up who is fond of such work are the Spiney Mice of Egypt, that have the hair interspersed with spines, and the Kangaroo Rats of our Southwestern plains.

Next month shipping Rats and Mice.

CAVY STANDARDS

not wish my readers to get confused by this pink eye business. All albinos have a pink eye but in crosses to colored animals the pink eye is not inherited. There is a pink eye which occurs in colored animals and is inherited. This is the type of eye to which I am referring.

There are but three standards left to be given and discussed: Chocolate, Dutch, Tortoise and White. These I hope to complete in the next issue, so that we can turn our attention to other phases of cavy management. *The AR&CBA Standards are reproduced by permission of the Association, owners of the copyright.

Correction of article in February issue: Page 73, last column, the line "Chocolate and Cream aaBBcceePP" should read, "Cinnamon Agouti and Red AAbbCCe^ePP."

Fancy Show Mice

From Imported Prize-Winning English Strains:

Again we have a few trios of the following varieties for sale:

- | | |
